LYLE

The name Lyle is an ancient one. In the Eleventh Century the people of the Isles of Wight and Ely in England and the Isle of Butte in Scotland were called "de Insula." With the Norman conquest the name became "d'l'Isle," and with passing of Norman rule the d was lost and we have "l'Isle and later still the form in common use, Lyle.

It has been claimed that the derivation comes from nobles in the train of William, and this may also be true.

The earliest direct ancestor of the name Lyle whom we know is Samuel Lyle who was living in Ireland where he married Janet Knox in 1680. Of the family of Janet Knox, however, we have earlier record. She was the daughter of John Knox, whose wife was Sally Locke Knox (childless widow of Ephriam Knox), Sally Locke was the daughter of David Locke, whose wife was Mary Wylie, granddaughter of William Wylie, and his wife, Janet Black.

The "earliest Lyle," Samuel and his wife Janet Knox Lyle, occupied a stone house, which is still standing and is occupied by his descendants. It is near Larne, on the west coast of Ireland.

Samuel and Janet Knox Lyle had six children. One of them, James, married Margaret Snoddy (daughter of William Snoddy, and his wife, Jane Adams). James and Margaret Snoddy Lyle had eight children: Elizabeth, Jenny, Matthew, John, James, Robert, Daniel, William. The Southern family, now scattered throughout this country, is descended from four of these seven children, four sons. Three of them, Matthew, John and Daniel, emigrated to America and Robert's son, Samuel, emigrated probably with one of his uncles, or at least as a result of their emigration.

Though living in Ireland in County Antrim, near Larne, on the Irish coast, the family was of Scottish origin, and it is supposed that the emigration from Scotland took place about 1616.

In 1700 there was a general movement in Ireland for emigration to America.

MATHEW LYLE.

Mathew Lyle, first of the emigrant Lyles, son of James Lyle and Margaret Snoddy Lyle, was born in Ireland, about 1711, in the family residence at Browndood, near Larne, in County Antrim. He married, it is said, before he was of age, in 1731, (it is from this tradition that we learn the probable date of his birth) Esther Blair. (Esther Blair was born about 1713, in Ballyvallah, County Antrim, Ireland. She was the daughter of Samuel Blair, and his wife, they were married in 1690, Martha Campbell Lyle, a daughter of a James Lyle, of Toreagh, and his wife, Martha Campbell. James Lyle's father was John Lyle, and his wife was Florence Montgomery. Esther Blair was a descendant on her father's side of Brice Blair of very high lineage. Brice Blair married in Ayrshire, Scotland, Esther Peden, in 1625, and went to Ireland).

About ten years after Mathew Lyle's marriage to Esther Blair they emigrated to Virginia. The exact date is not known, but one of their children, Robert, who died young, was baptized in Larne, in 1740, and on July 30, 1742, Mathew Lyle's name is signed to a petition to Colonial Governor Gooch in Virginia, and he was evidently a resident of some standing in the colony at that time.

He settled on Timber Ridge, in what is now Rockbridge County, Virginia. From Mathew Lyle's marriage to Esther Blair there were born six children, four of whom grew to maturity. (William and Robert died young).

- (1) James Lyle.
- (2) Elizabeth Lyle.
- (3) John Lyle.
- (4) Martha Lyle.

Of the foregoing:

James Lyle, first child of Matthew and Esther Blair Lyle, was born in Ireland in 1732, and died in Virginia. He accompanied his parents to Virginia about 1741. He married in Virginia about 1764, Hannah Alexander. Their children were: Joseph, Matthew, Elizabeth, Esther, Margaret, John and Archibald. Of these: Joseph Lyle married Sarah Butt, in 1791, and had children; Mathew Lyle became a Presbyterian minister, married his cousin, Sarah Lyle, and had children; Elizabeth Lyle married her cousin, William Lyle as his second wife and had children; Esther Lyle never married; Margaret Lyle married James Alexander and had children; John Lyle, a physician, went from Virginia to Texas and nothing definite is known of him; Archibald Lyle never married. He commanded a company of cavalry in the war of 1812.

John Lyle second son of Matthew Lyle and Esther Blair, was born in Ireland about 1736; he died in Virginia in 1793, was captain of a militia company in 1778, accompanied his parents to America and married twice in Virginia; first Isabella Paxton, and, second, Frances Stuart. He had three children by Isabella Paxton; John, Esther and Mary Paxton Lyle, and by his second wife, Frances Stuart, he had two children, Alexander Stuart Lyle and Isabella Lyle. (Of these: John Lyle married Nancy Thompkins and had fourteen children, only three of whom, however, married; Esther Lyle married Joseph Paxton and had children; Mary Paxton Lyle married James MacDowell, (son of Judge Samuel MacDowell, and Mary McClung, and grandson of Captain John McDowell, who first settled on Borden's Grant in Virginia, in 1737), and had children; Alexander Stuart Lyle probably did not marry; Isabella Lyle married John McDowell and had a son, William McDowell, who married but had no children.

NOTABLE SOUTHERN FAMILIES

Elizabeth Lyle, eldest daughter of Matthew Lyle and Esther Blair Lyle, was born in Ireland about 1734, and died in Virginia. She married twice and is ancestress of a large and influential posterity. Numbers of Tennesseans and Georgians claim descent from Elizabeth Lyle. She remained in Ireland, when her parents emigrated to America, with her grandparents and her maternal uncle, Daniel Blair. She married in Ireland, about the year 1750, William Thompson, (died 1759), son of Thomas Thompson (b. 1697, d. 1779), and his wife, Mary Black, (b. 1714, d. 1778), who was the daughter of Samuel Black, (b. 1656, d. 1740), and his wife, Alice Murdock, (b. 1675, d. 1743). Elizabeth Lyle Thompson and her husband, William Thompson, had three daughters, Esther, Jane and Mary. Six years after the death of William Thompson (in 1759), the young widow married (1765) for her second husband, William Thompson's first cousin, Mathew Donald, (son of John Donald, and Margaret Black, Mary Black having been William Thompson's mother). Elizabeth Lyle Thompson Donald and her husband, Mathew Donald, emigrated to America in 1775, bringing with them her three Thompson daughters, Esther, Jane and Mary, and her children by Mathew Donald. Another child, Margaret, was born at sea in 1775 and this establishes the date of their crossing. The children of Elizabeth and Mathew Donald were Mathew Lyle, John, Samuel, Margaret, William Blair, James and Mark. Margaret was born at sea in 1775.

LYLE

Of Elizabeth Lyle's daughters by William Thompson: Esther Thompson (born about 1752) married about 1778, John McShadden; they went from Virginia to Tennessee and settled near Dandridge, and had a large family, namely, James, Thomas, Elizabeth, Jane, John, Mary, Samuel, Esther, Mathew, Archibald Thompson. A large connection of East Tennessee people comes from this family.

Jane Thompson, second daughter of Elizabeth Lyle Thompson, (b. about 1755, d. near Dandridge, Tennessee), married James Walker, and had children: Jane and Elizabeth, (both of whom married and had children), and married a second time Andrew Cowan (who had, by a previous marriage, six children). She had three Cowan children, Joel W., Thompson and Matthew, all of whom married and had children. She married a third husband, Joel Ellis, but had by him no children. Jane Walker, (eldest child of Jane Thompson, by her first husband, James Walker), is the ancestress of the Inman family, through her marriage to John Ritchie Inman, son of Abednego Inman; their children were James Abednego, Mary A. Shadrack Walker, James M., John W., William M., Joel C., Walker P., Elizabeth, Jane, Susan, Hannah, Matilda, Sallie and Mary, which was rather a nursery full, even for those prolific times.

Mary Thompson, daughter of Elizabeth Lyle and William Thompson, was born in Ireland about 1757; she died in 1797. She is frequently called Polly Thompson in the family record. She came with her mother and stepfather to America in 1775. She married Samuel Wear, in Augusta County, Virginia, in 1778. Samuel Wear was a son of Robert Wear. Mary and Samuel Wear moved to what is now Tennessee and settled on Little Pigeon River, Sevier County, Tennessee, which was then a part of North Carolina. For history of Colonel Samuel Wear see Armstrong Family).

Samuel Wear married twice. After the death of Mary Thompson Wear he married Mary "Gilhan," or Gilliland, and had by her several children, though this record deals with the children by his first wife only, namely, Elizabeth, Robert, Rebecca, Samuel, Junior, John and Mary.

Elizabeth Wear, daughter of Samuel Wear, and his first wife, Polly Thompson, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, 1780, and died in Tennessee, 1820. She married Robert Armstrong, the third, son of Robert Armstrong, second, and his wife, Margaret Cunningham. They built a home, which is standing, on the Tennessee River above Knoxville. Their children were Drury Paine Armstrong, who married Amelia Houston); Addison Wear Armstrong, who married Nancy MacMillan); Maria Armstrong, (who married John Brooks); Rutelia Armstrong, (who married Thomas G. Craighead); Charlotte Armstrong, (who married first Samuel Armstrong, and had no children; married second Henry C. Baldwin); Robert Houston Armstrong (who died young); Margaret Cunningham Armstrong (who married Samuel Hannibal Love); Dialthea Perry Armstrong, (who married Pleasant M. Love); James H. Armstrong, (who married Ann Eliza Park); Malinda Armstrong, (who married Samuel Morrow); Samuel T. Armstrong, (who died young), and Elizabeth Armstrong, (who died young). From these sons and daughters comes a large connection.

Robert Wear married Lucretia Thomas and had children. Rebecca Wear married John Witt and had children. Samuel Wear, Junior, married and had children. John Wear, who was also an officer in the War of 1812, married Sussannah Mullendore and had children. He married for his second wife Sarah M. Patty and had children.

Mary Wear, last child of Samuel Wear by his first wife, Polly or Mary Thompson, married Colonel Simeon Perry and had children. Simeon Perry married a second wife.

A very large connection of Tennessee people comes through Samuel Wear's children.

Going back to Elizabeth Lyle, who married first William Thompson, and second Matthew Donald: By her marriage to Donald she had seven children: Mathew Lyle Donald, (who married Mrs. Nancy Walker, nee Caughron or Cawhorn, and had children); John Donald (who married Nancy Paxton); Samuel Donald (who died unmarried); Margaret Donald, who married William Keys, who was a Colonel of an Ohio Regiment in the War of 1812; William Blair Donald, who married Mary Campbell, and was a Captain in the War of 1812; James Donald, who married Jennie McCorkle, and Mary Donald, who married his cousin, Hannah Lyle).

Martha Lyle, fourth child of Matthew Lyle and his wife, Esther Blair, was born about 1740. She accompanied her parents from Ireland to Virginia and married there about 1758, Matthew Houston, son of John Houston and an uncle to General Samuel Houston. Their children were John (who married Rachel Balch); Samuel (who married Nancy Gillespie, married second Mary Mitchell, by whom he had no children, and married third Annie Hutchison, by whom he had no children); Matthew (who married Margaret Cloyd); Robert D., (who died unmarried); Esther (who married her cousin, Major James Houston); and Margaret (who married Captain James Gillespie).

JOHN LYLE.

John Lyle, second of the emigrant brothers and second son of James Lyle and Margaret Snoddy, of County Antrim, Ireland, was born about 1720, in Ireland. He married in Ireland, Jean Owens, a daughter of William Owens, and his wife, Matilda Knox, (of the same family of Janet Knox, who was John Lyle's grandmother by her marriage to Samuel Lyle in 1680, or about that date). John Lyle and his wife emigrated to Virginia about 1745. They settled on Timber Ridge, now Rockbridge County, Virginia, adjoining the property of his brother, Matthew Lyle. Like all the Lyles, John was a Presbyterian and helped to establish the faith in Virginia. He worked on the Presbyterian Church of Timber Ridge, which was built on lands given by his brother, Mathew. He died in 1758 and was survived for forty years by his widow. Their children were:

- (1) John Lyle.
- (2) David Lyle.
- (3) Martha Lyle.
- (4) Elizabeth Lyle.
- (5) Sarah Lyle.
- (6) Esther Lyle.

Of the foregoing:

John Lyle married Flora Reid, and had children; William Lyle married Nancy Agnes Gilmore and had children; Martha Lyle was left in Ireland with her maternal grandparents, Owens, when John Lyle and his wife emigrated to Virginia, she married in Ireland, Robert Russell and emigrated with him to Virginia. She returned to Ireland, however, and died there; she had children; Elizabeth Lyle married Samuel Ramsey and had children; Sarah Lyle married her cousin, James Lyle, son of Daniel Lyle, the emigrant, and had children; Esther Lyle married Samuel Keys and had children.

DANIEL LYLE.

Daniel Lyle, third brother and emigrant, was born in Ireland about 1715. He was the son of James Lyle and Margaret Snoddy. Daniel Lyle emigrated to Virginia about 1745, when his brothers, Matthew and John, were already settled there. He had a home on Timber Ridge in what is now Rockbridge County, and helped to build the Timber Ridge Presbyterian Church, land for which was given by his brother, Matthew. He married in Virginia, _____ Paxton, and his children were:

- (1) James Lyle.
- (2) David Lyle.
- (3) Robert Lyle.
- (4) Samuel Lyle.
- (5) John Lyle.
- (6) Esther Lyle.

Of the foregoing:

James Lyle married his cousin Sarah Lyle and had children.

David Lyle never married.

Robert Lyle (married Jane Ramsey and had children).

Samuel Lyle married Elizabeth White, a cousin of Hugh Lawson White, and had children, married second Margery Hadley and had children. He was in the Revolution.

John Lyle was a Presbyterian minister and a soldier of the Revolution; he married Sarah Glass and had children.

SAMUEL LYLE.

Samuel Lyle, the fourth emigrant, was a son of Robert Lyle, a brother of the three emigrants, Matthew, Daniel and John and a grandson, therefore, of James Lyle and Margaret Snoddy. Samuel Lyle was born about 1725, near Larne, County Antrim, Ireland. He emigrated to Virginia about 1750, when his paternal uncles had been settled there for some years. For a time he made his home with his uncle, Daniel Lyle, but afterward settled land for himself on Timber Ridge, in what is now Rockbridge County. His first home stood a mile from Fairfield, Virginia. Later he moved northeast of Lexington. He was an important member of the community, Justice of the Peace, Vestryman, etc.; he married Sarah McClung, a daughter of William McClung, and his six children were:

- (1) William Lyle.
- (2) James Lyle.
- (3) Mary Lyle.
- (4) Jean Lyle.
- (5) Elizabeth Lyle.
- (6) Sarah Lyle.

Of the foregoing:

William Lyle married Julia Ann Stuart, and had children. After her death William Lyle married for his second wife, Elizabeth Lyle (his second cousin, daughter of James Lyle and Hannah Alexander). They also had children. William Lyle was a soldier of the Revolution.

James Lyle married Margaret Baker and had one daughter who married Abram Smith, and had children.

Mary Lyle married John Dalhouse, and had children.

Jane Lyle married James Ramsey and had children.

Elizabeth Lyle married Michael Graham, a Revolutionary soldier, and had children.

Sarah Lyle married her cousin, Matthew Lyle, and had children.

This completes a brief account of the Lyles. Each of the lines mentioned can be carried out to the present date.

James Gibson was born about 1686 in Scotland (?) and died in Bedford County, Virginia (will s. 14 April 1764—proved 26 February 1765); James was an elder in the Presbyterian Church; said to be Tyrone County, Ireland. (Tyrone is an inland county with Donegal north and west, Londonderry northeast, Lough Neagh on the east, Monaghan and Fermanagh on the south. Omagh is the county seat.) The estimated date for the marriage of James, about 1711, probably in Tyrone County, Ireland. James Gibson was in Russell Parish. His children as named in his will:

1. John Gibson, born around 1715, possibly in Tyrone County, Ireland. He married about 1740; moved to Frederick County, Virginia before 1748.
2. James Gibson, Jr. left all of his father's estate.
3. Randall Gibson died between 1817 and 1823 in Albemarle County, Virginia; married Anne _____; In the will, he was left the new Bumbon; His grandson: Nicholas Francis Gibson.
4. Archbell Gibson was deceased by 1764, probably died in Bedford County, Virginia. He left children who inherited from grandfather's will.
5. Elizabeth Gibson married _____ Candler before 1764; received "teen lbs." from father's will.
6. Catherine Gibson married Meshack Hale before 1764. He was in Bedford Militia in 1758.
7. Hanner Gibson married _____ Cook before 1764. She received "teen lbs." from father's will.

1. From available information, our line follows the number one child of James Gibson; John Gibson born about 1715. John Gibson died before the writing of his father's will in 1764. His heirs (not named) were left 5 shillings. The name of his wife is not known but he probably married around 1740. He was in Frederick County, Virginia by 1748 when his son John was born. Some of his children are believed to be:

- (1.) Elizabeth Gibson was born February 13, 1741 and died January 15, 1831 in Jackson County, Georgia (age 90). She married around 1763, probably in Bedford County, Virginia, to Maher Shellal Hashbaz Lyle. He was born March 14, 1737 and died January 30, 1814 in Jackson County, Georgia. Maher Lyle was from a family of Larne in Antrim County, Ulster (or northern Ireland).
- (2.) Joseph Gibson was born about 1743.
- (3.) William Gibson was born around 1746.
- (4.) John Gibson was born November 28, 1748 in Frederick County, Virginia and died on September 16, 1837 in Union County, South Carolina. John served in the Revolutionary War from Bedford County, Virginia.
- (5.) Thomas Gibson was born about 1750.

Our line follows the number 4 child, John Gibson. His children's Record here is sketchy but one child was William Gibson, another was believed to be Herod Gibson.

William Gibson was born in Bedford County, Virginia in 1772. He was married around 1795. He was 78 years of age and living in Chambers

John Gibson, Revolutionary War soldier and pensioner #S9338.

Our John Gibson was born November 28, 1748 in Frederick County, Virginia. Sometime after the family moved to Bedford County, John Gibson enlisted as a Revolutionary War soldier, serving three months in 1778 and again three months in 1780. He was a private under Captain Robert Adams in Colonel Lynch's Regiment.

His pension record shows that he moved to Union County, South Carolina in 1784.

One source says he fought with George Washington but we have no proof.

John Gibson received a land grant in Union County. It was believed to be a military grant of confiscated Tory land. The biggest land owners in that section during the revolution were Moses Kirkland and Colonel Fletchell. Both had to flee the country when the war ended.

Brother-in-law & neighbor - elder Maher Lyle.

John Gibson's land was located on branches of Sandy Run Creek which runs into the Pacolet River north of Jonesville.

John Gibson served on numerous juries as a citizen of Union County.

On the other side of the law, Robert Gibson, William Gibson, William Dalefield and John Gibson were brought up on a breaking the peace charge. Plaintiffs in the case were Maher and Delmar Lyle. The matter was settled after a promise of good behavior toward the Lyles by the Gibsons for a period of twelve months and one day.

[Note: according to records, John Gibson and Maher Lyle were brothers-in-law. Maher Lyles was married to John's sister, Elizabeth. Delmar Lyle was Maher's son.]

From time to time, John Gibson sold off parts of his land. Deed Book F, page 231, August 18, 1796, indicates a land deed to Jesse P. Pool of 100 acres for 30 pounds of sterling. The land was located in Pinckney District on Big Sandy Run adjacent to lands of Henderson and Haile. On December 25, 1801, a deed is recorded in Book H, page 352, where 99 acres of Gibson land were sold to Green Burrough. The land bordered on the property of Pool, Hailes, Hames, and Robert Coleman.

Lyle Family

I found this information in the book: "Historical Southern Families" by Zeila Armstrong and I thought maybe the people who do not have access to this book would enjoy reading it. Here goes: The name Lyle is an ancient one. In the 11th century the people of the Isles of Wight and Ely in England and the Isle of Butte in Scotland were called "de Insula." With the Norman conquest the name became "d'I'Isle," and with passing of Norman rule the d was lost and we have 'I'Isle and later still the form in common use, Lyle. It has been claimed that the derivation comes from nobles in the train of William, and this may also be true. The earliest direct ancestor of the name Lyle who we know is Samuel Lyle who was living in Ireland where he married Janet Knox in 1680. Of the family of Janet Knox, however, we have earlier record. She was the daughter of John Knox, whose wife was Sally Locke Knox (childrens widow of Ephraim Knox), Sally Locke was the daughter of William Wylie, and his wife, Janet Black. The "earliest Lyle," Samuel and his wife, Janet Knox Lyle, occupied a stone house, which is still standing and is occupied by his descendants. It is near Larne, on the west coast of Ireland. Samuel and Janet Knox Lyle had six children. One of them, James, married Margaret Snoddy (daughter of William Snoddy, and his wife, Jane Adams). Elizabeth, Jenny, Matthew, John, James, Robert, Daniel, William. The Southern family, now scattered throughout this country, is descended from four of these seven children, four sons. Three of them, Matthew, John and Daniel, emigrated to America and Robert's son Samuel, emigrated probably with one of his uncles, or at least as a result of their emigration. Though living in Ireland in County Antrim near Larne, on the Irish coast, the family was of Scottish origin, and it is supposed that the emigration from Scotland took place about 1616. In 1700 there was a general movement in Ireland for emigration to America. MATTHEW LYLE, Matthew Lyle, first of the emigrant Lyles, son of James Lyle and Margaret Snoddy Lyle, was born in Ireland, about 1711, in the family residence at Brownwood, near Larne, in County Antrim. He married, it is said, before he was of age, in 1731, (it is from this tradition that we learn the probable date of Jos bort) Esther Blair. (Esther Blair was born about 1713, in Baillyallish, County Antrim, Ireland. She was the daughter of Samuel Blair, and his wife, they were married in 1690, Martha Campbell Lyle, a daughter of a James

James Lyle, first child of Matthew and Esther Blair Lyle, was born in Ireland in 1732, and died in Virginia. He accompanied his parents to Va. about 1741. He married in Va. about 1764, Hannah Alexander. Their children were: Joseph, Matthew, Elizabeth, Esther, Margaret, John and Archibald. Of these: Joseph Lyle married Sarah Butt, in 1791, and had children: Matthew Lyle became a Presbyterian minister, married his cousin, Sarah Lyle, and had children: Elizabeth Lyle married her cousin, William Lyle as his second wife and had children: Esther Lyle never married; Margaret Lyle married James Alexander and had children: John Lyle, a physician, went from Va. to Texas and nothing definite is known of him; Archibald Lyle never married. He commanded a company of cavalry in the war of 1812. John Lyle second son of Matthew Lyle and Esther Blair, was born in Ireland about 1736; he died in Va. in 1793, was captain of a militia company in 1778, accompanied his parents to America and married twice in Va: first Isabella Paxton, and, second, Frances Stuart. He had three children by Isabella Paxton: John Esther and Mary Paxton Lyle, and by his second wife, Frances Stuart, he had two children, Alexander Stuart Lyle and Isabella Lyle. (Of these: John Lyle married Nancy Thompkins and had fourteen children, only three of whom, however, married: Esther Lyle married Joseph Paxton and had children: Mary Paxton Lyle married James MacDowell, (son of Judge Samuel MacDowell, and Mary McClung, and grandson of Captain John MacDowell, who first settled on Borden's Grant in Virginia, in 1737), and had children: Alexander Stuart Lyle probably did not marry; Isabella Lyle married John Lyle, of Foreagh, and his wife, Martha Campbell. James Lyle's father was John Lyle, and his wife was Florence Montgomery. Esther Blair was a descendant on her father's side of Brice Blair of very high lineage. Brice Blair married in Ayrshire, Scotland, Esther Feden, in 1625, and went to Ireland). About ten years after Matthew Lyle's marriage to Esther Blair, they migrated to Virginia. The exact date is not known, but one of their children, Robert, who died young, was baptized in Larne, in 1740, and on July 30, 1742, Matthew Lyle's name is signed to a petition to Colonial Governor Boock in Virginia, and he was evidently a resident of some standing in the colony at that time. He settled on Timber Ridge, in what is now Rockbridge County, Va. From Matthew Lyle's marriage to Esther Blair there were born six children, four of whom grew to maturity. (William and Robert died young). (1) James Lyle, (2) Elizabeth Lyle, (3) John Lyle, (4) Martha Lyle. Of the foregoing: CONTINUED TO ANOTHER MESSAGE.
